Panjir and the Bike with Golden Handlebars

Paul Moers & Ru de Groen Illustrated by Maren Bruin

"I would like to have a friend," said Panjir. "You can't," said his father. "Friends smell like buffalo milk!"

Panjir is about to start school. One day he will be King of the whole of Ulibar and get everything he wants, but all he really wants right now is to make friends. School seems like a good place to start. To get to school Panjir is given a bike with golden handlebars. The problem is, he has no idea how to ride it and, because he is not allowed any friends, he has no-one to teach him.

The Worry Box Monster

Michelle Maiden

"There is just one rule," says Dad. "Make sure to put your worries in the box one at a time. You must never EVER overfeed it."

Aya is a worrier. During the day she is as happy as can be, but when it gets dark, when it's time for bed, that's when her troubles begin. The curtain turns into a scary witch, the spider on the ceiling into an evil alien and the dress on her chair into a spooky ghost. Worst of all, the box where she posts all her worries is getting bigger. What terrible thing could be growing inside and what can Aya do about it?

Grandpa Kuma in Japan

Michelle Maiden

"It's Grandpa Kuma," I shouted. He still looked like a big, fluffy bear to me!

After Grandpa Kuma's visit to New York, Miko has travelled all the way to Japan to see him again. Grandpa Kuma wants Miko to try speaking Japanese but although Miko has been practising, she is too shy to speak it. Until, that is, she finds herself lost in a big, strange city and she knows she must find her voice before it's too late.

Four busily brilliant stories

The world of Dougal Daley

Created by Jackie Marchant and illustrated by Loretta Schauer

Dougal Daley It's not my fault!

In this first book, football-loving Dougal Daley finds himself at risk from the mysterious creature living in the garden shed. Nobody believes him but as a precaution, he sets about writing his will - rewarding those who help him and disinheriting those who get on his bad side. Meanwhile, as limbs and windows alike are broken by rogue footballs and unhinged canines, Dougal finds himself in all sorts of trouble ... and NONE of it is his fault!

Dougal Daley Where's My Tarantula?

In this second book, football-loving Dougal Daley once again finds himself on the wrong side of almost everyone. Someone has stolen his pet tarantula, Sybil (named after his sister - they both have very hairy legs), and she (the spider, not the sister) is being held to ransom. Dougal must fulfill the kidnapper's demands before poor Sybil is tortured ... one leg at a time!

Dougal Daley I'm Phenomenal

In this third book Dougal finds that making money isn't quite as easy as he thinks. In fact it causes him more trouble than it's worth as he gets caught up in a fast-paced adventure that he finds impossible to control. There's the mysterious Igor Meerkat, poisonous ants and a horned lizard that shoots blood out of her eyes all caught up in the mayhem. But, of course, NONE of it is Dougal's fault!

Double Felix

Sally Harris Illustrated by Maria Serrano

He skips every second step when he takes the stairs, taps door handles twice and positions objects in pairs. The problem has become so bad that Felix is on the verge of being expelled because the principal has had enough of trying to run the school around his very specific rules.

Then Charlie Pye arrives and turns his world upside down. She's grown up with very few rules. She eats cereal for lunch, calls a boat home, and has a very loose interpretation of school uniform. The question is, can Felix ever learn to be wrong when he is so obsessed with being right?

A story about a boy with OCD that shines a light on problems caused by OCD and Autism.

A Girl Called T.O.M: Granny for Sale

Jackie Marchant Illustrated by Loretta Schauer

When Tom's granny returns from her latest world travels, Tom is alarmed to hear that not only is she moving in with them, but that Tom is expected to share a bedroom with her. Tom's granny is one of life's eccentrics and where she goes, chaos follows. True to form Granny immediately turns Tom's life upside down, not helped by Tom's super-hero obsessed dad, her quirky, yoga-teaching mum and weirdly obsessive little brother. Desperate to get things back to normal, Tom lists her granny for sale on e-Sellalot, more as a joke than anything else. But it's when bids actually start rolling in in ever-increasing amounts that the trouble really starts!

Bjarne Reuter Illustrated by Kirsten Raagaard

Translated by Sian Mackie

"The girl and her dog sit eating salty liquorice on a half-built suspension bridge in the Amazon rainforest."

Elise is lonely. Her mum is far away in Brazil helping to finish the building of a suspension bridge and her dad is busy trying to get by as a musician in the Danish city of Copenhagen where they live. So when Elise asks for a dog to keep her company, her dad finds it hard to refuse. But the dog that Elise ends up with is no ordinary dog. He is second-hand, he looks like an ugly rabbit, he smells of cheese...and he can talk!

"This book is evidence that humour can travel. Including a darkly hilarious set-piece Halloween party and mad characters, it is quirky, clever and original and plotted to make the most of punch lines."

Nicolette Jones, Sunday Times Children's Books Editor
